Note to Candidates: Please submit your signed CIO Authorization Form on the same date as your application to ensure your package is documented as complete and eligible for scoring.

The CIO acknowledges the following Information Technology Leadership Academy (ITLA) expectations:

- Requires a 18-week commitment from January 7, 2026 – May 6, 2026.
- Incurs a cost of $5,400 per candidate, and there are no refunds once the academy begins.
- Requires full participation in the formal training sessions with no more than three (3) absences.
- Involves a significant time commitment which will require the redistribution of the candidate's workload due to the combination of scheduled sessions and tasks/assignments to be completed outside of class (e.g., preparation for the CIO Academy, Walk Like a Leader, Team Class Exercise, etc.).
- Will be conducted via both remote and in-person platforms. In-person sessions will be delivered at the Department of Technology's TEC and students will be expected to attend regardless of their location. It is also important to note that in-person sessions are not offered via hybrid, are not recorded, and cannot be made up at a later date.
- May incur travel costs associated with this academy (e.g., travel to the TEC for in-person sessions).
- If the CIO's candidate is accepted and graduates, the CIO commits to providing at least three distinct, high-value opportunities for the graduate to see strong leadership in action within six months of his/her graduation. (Examples could be attending a legislative or budget hearing, shadowing a meeting that models strategic thinking and data-driven decision making, and/or providing exposure to opportunities within the executive community.
